

SPECIFICATION FOR CORRECT USE OF STAINLESS STEEL LASER CUTTING MACHINE

Posted on 2023-03-08 by redsail

Category: Laser Cutter News

In the process of using the stainless steel laser cutting machine, you must be able to understand the overall safety operation rules, so as to ensure that the use function effect can be better played, and can avoid affecting the normal work, and can also make the overall working performance better displayed, so when using the stainless steel laser cutting machine, you must pay attention to the correct use specifications.

After professional training, the operator must be familiar with the use process of the corresponding software, and also need to be able to fully master the structure and performance of the equipment. The important thing is to be able to adjust in time when encountering some technical faults, so that the overall use function can play normally.

In the process of using the laser cutting machine, the operator must be able to wear the labor protection user in accordance with the relevant regulations, and the protective glasses of corresponding specifications must be worn near the laser beam, so as to avoid injury to the eyes of employees. After the equipment starts to start, the surrounding staff must not leave the post without authorization, and must be monitored in time.